THE VALUE IN EXPORTING

If you're a business owner, has your company considered implementing an export plan? As 95.8 percent of the world's population live outside the United States—and with them, approximately 75 percent of the world's purchasing power—selling globally can be the key to reaching a whole new segment of consumers. Exporting can also be the secret to stability, as companies that diversify their sales are in a better position to weather fluctuations in the U.S. economy.

It's important to also keep in mind that success may live surprisingly close to home. In 2022, U.S. sellers exported $2.062 trillion in goods and services; $679.2 billion of that went to Canada and Mexico alone. With free trade agreements in place to reduce financial and administrative burdens, exporting to our North American neighbors can be easier and more profitable than ever.

Support for Exporters

A 2022 survey with the NSBA revealed that as few as 10 percent of companies felt they had sufficient domestic business, but less than half of respondents exported to customers outside the U.S. Many of these companies reported that financial or logistical challenges prevented them from doing so, yet when asked about their use of government programs for exporters, more than 60% reported not utilizing any support.

Underserved businesses don't need to do it alone. There are government resources available to help you on your path to exporting.

OVERCOME HURDLES

Do any of the following apply to your business?

- ✔ You offer open credit to foreign buyers, or you have previously been asked to provide credit.
- ✔ The idea of offering open credit terms to a foreign customer causes you concern.
- ✔ You need a line of credit to finance your export sales.

If so, EXIM can help. Our financing solutions are designed to take the worry out of exporting and give your company the competitive edge to win more sales. No exporter or sale is too small; almost 90% of our customers are small businesses, and we have supported sales of only a few hundred dollars.

EXIM is proud to offer U.S. exporters:

01

Protection Against Risk

Export Credit Insurance is a policy that covers foreign receivables. It covers both commercial and political risks, enabling businesses to extend credit to buyers and protect against nonpayment. This helps you win new customers and increase sales to existing ones.

02

Access to Cashflow

The Working Capital Loan Guarantee works with a U.S. company's lender to provide a loan guarantee that backs the exporter's debt. With this guarantee in place, the lender can extend a working capital loan to improve the company's cash flow.

03

Financing for Buyers

Our term financing helps international buyers obtain loans and purchase U.S. capital goods or related services.

SUPPORTING INCLUSIVENESS

EXIM offers a variety of financing tools to increase competitiveness and improve liquidity for all American exporters, no matter the size. However, did you know that more than 10 million businesses across the country are minority- or women-owned? These companies often face additional challenges yet are historically underserved.

Equity is a priority for EXIM. We proudly provide additional support for these critical businesses.

The Minority- and Women-Owned Business Division, or MWOB, seeks to expand inclusiveness by engaging those in the underserved business community who are interested in exporting their goods and services. Our dedicated team:

EXPORTER SPOTLIGHT

Morgan Cosmetics

Morgan Cosmetics, renowned for its organic skin, hair, and nail care products made from Moroccan argan oil, seamlessly blends tradition with innovation from its bases in Morocco and suburban Seattle. Established in 2012, the company now boasts a portfolio of over 60 items.

Recognizing the vast global market, Morgan Cosmetics ventured into international territories, aided by EXIM's invoice insurance, safeguarding up to 95% of international invoices. With expanded exports to Bahrain, Japan, Oman, and Canada, and plans for further expansion, the company anticipates doubling its sales with EXIM's backing.

“EXIM mitigates risks associated in international trade. These financial resources can really help businesses expand their export capabilities and manage cash flow effectively.”

Bachir Abba
CEO & Founder of Morgan Cosmetics

BNutty

Joy Thompkins initially worked with Carol Podolak to create peanut butter for school fundraising, but the two knew they had something special when their customers demanded the product year round. As BNutty attracted attention from overseas buyers, the pair was concerned about whether exporting could cause cashflow issues that would negatively impact domestic sales.

EXIM offered the solution BNutty needed: an invoice insurance policy that protects against buyer nonpayment. BNutty now offers competitive credit terms, competes in international sales, and expands into new markets.

“EXIM's support has allowed us to say 'yes' to more opportunities and be comfortable with this new stage. And for a small company, that means the world to us.”

Founders of BNutty
